

The Federal Communications Commission

Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service impractical.

I understand that under the flat fee proposal, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers.

I use my wireless phone for safety and contacting my spouse. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses can pay less than their fair share. Many of us older [seniors] do not abuse the use of wireless phones and use them for less than 30 minutes a month.

I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Sincerely,

Sharon Glazier
